SUMMARY

TECHNICAL SKILLS

TECHNICAL PROJECTS

Project 1 name [Github] [Link if deployed]

High level summary of application-give an overview so the bullets make sense.

- EACH BULLET INCLUDING IN YOUR EXPERIENCE SECTION NEEDS TO ANSWER THE BELOW QUESTIONS:
- What did you do? What tools did you use? What's the impact of the tool/strategy/action? Did you resolve the issue/problem?

(example) YoGaGo App - Demo Link | Github

A Yelp- inspired crowd source web application to search and review Yoga studios in Canada

- Built application end-to-end using Python Django framework with MySQL, optimized search function with AJAX that significantly increased search speed, implemented OAuth with GitHub, Facebook, Twitter <sup>11</sup> to streamline registration
- Designed and scaled backend of home listing application to display image files while handling high traffic requests with low latency
- Optimized page load performance by building a clean Django framework, enabling caching and identified performance bottlenecks using Loader.io to simulate high traffic and New Relic dashboard

(example 2) Vacay | Demo link

All in one AWS based web application to record, share, edit pictures and experiences— this is your 'Travel Memory Book' for lifetime.

- Designed and developed, responsive, and scalable web app using Django MTV framework and ORM
- Leverage existing Google Place and Photo APIs to connect with user's google account to upload pictures and integrated a Django authentication model, templates, bootstrap styles and ORM to ensure user security
- Streamlined a payment gateway through integration of third party API (Stripe and Paypal) enabling a secure, cost-effective, and enriched user experience

Commented [DUY LYFOR3]: YOU MUST COMMIT CONTENT TO GITHUB OFTEN. THROUGHOUT YOUR JOB SEARCH. this is a way to show people that while job searching you are continuing to code--the commitment calendar should have lots of green dots.

Commented [DUY LYFOR2]: optional but I would suggest it. You have no other work experience related to software so you have to make up for it. A personal website should be fairly easy to accomplish it will take some time but it's a great tool that can be easily shared--and acts as an additional example of your skills.

Commented [DUY LYFOR4]: summary is optional but I suggest having an short brief summary. 2-3 sentence that covers your career but quickly turn it towards your interest in software and development.

Stay focus on the types of industry/jobs -this section should change and align with whatever company you are applying to. Use words from the job description or company website to insert in here to make your summary more relevant

Commented [DUY LYFOR6]: This section is your bread and butter-if you want to be considered for any software role this has to be built out. I suggest 2-3 project. They don't all need to be complete full stack projects.

Commented [DUY LYFOR7]: Here's a good example of a Github Repository. NOTICE THE README includes photos/video Gifs of the web application. Nobody wants to see just your code--visual evidence:<https://github.com/October2020PandA/BenShermanSoloProject>

Commented [DUY LYFOR8]: similar to your projects--you MUST HAVE IMPACT STATEMENTS. Each bullet should tell me why, how, and purpose--or else the sentence means nothing. Think about your work in terms of something that can be measured. What were

Commented [DUY LYFOR9]: you current bullets are way too task focus. You should not focus on your job responsibilities--who cares about what you do.

What people care about is how your actions impact the company.

Commented [DUY LYFOR10]: Our focus is on the technical aspect of our experience--projects. You can include the work you have but no need to go deep into details
